to enroll in the Honors Pilot Ground School Course. I understand that this is considered an Honors course, meaning that it is taught at the college level. The course is not an easy one, as many new concepts are introduced each week, mastery of which will be tested in May. Because my child will potentially be receiving over $4,000 worth of benefits in the form of ground and flight instruction, enrollment is limited. At least 90 minutes of homework is required for each of the 17 weeks of instruction. Only those who can commit to this level of hard work can be accepted. I commit to supporting my child in this effort in the form of encouragement, transportation, and computer resources required.

Flight instruction requires a medical evaluation before your student can solo. This physical exam must be conducted by an authorized Federal Aviation Administration Aviation Medical Examiner (AME - not your regular doctor), and costs anywhere from $90 - $150, depending on which doctor you employ. Neither UMA nor Platinum pays for this required exam. There are some health issues which may preclude your child from passing this medical scrutiny. Without the medical certificate provided by the flight surgeon, your child will not be able to gain a pilot certificate. Please review this website for a list of disqualifying conditions: <https://tinyurl.com/UMAMedical>.

Student Commitment:

I recognize that the Honors Pilot Ground School is a college-level course that requires at least 90 minutes of homework each week in order to successfully pass the standardized test at the end of the semester. Upon receiving a passing score of 70% on that exam, and receipt of an Aviation Medical Examiner's medical certificate, UMA will pay for a minimum of 20 hours of flight instruction, worth approximately $4,000.00. I commit to attending each class and putting in the required minimum 90 minutes of homework each week in order to absorb and master the material presented. I understand that this is not an easy course, and that by taking up a slot, I am displacing others who might be able to participate.
